

The New York Herald estimates Mr. Blaine's fortune at $10,000,000. Most of this has been made by operations in stocks.

General Weaver, the late candidate for President on the Greenback ticket, is advertised to make fifteen Greenback speeches in Texas this summer. A political dead beat still mauling on a dead subject.

The Atlanta Constitution is authority for the statement that there has been more reapers sold in Georgia this year than were owned in the entire cotton belt a year ago. If they sell many more reapers and plows in Georgia, the State will become Republican.

The combined loss of the workmen and the employers already sustained by reason of a cessation of business is estimated at nearly $1,500,000. While some mills have resumed work, the most of them are no nearer a settlement than when the strike began.

Congressman George, of Oregon, is the first man ever elected to Congress from that State, and this success he won without wire pulling. During the campaign he remained in Washington, attended to his business, and allowed some one else to look after his political fences.

Assemblyman Price, who did much to secure the passage of the congressional apportionment bill, is a candidate for Congress in the Eighth district. From present indications, he will likely succeed. He is an erratic, fearless man, and although he has many enemies, he manages to secure considerable political power.

All the Republican members of Congress from Pennsylvania, it is said, with the exception of three, believe that the Regular Republican ticket will be defeated. It has been suggested, and the suggestion is wise and timely, that all the Republican members of the delegation sign an appeal to the chairmen of the two Republican State committees to take some means to harmonize the differences in the party in that State.

One of the most laughable things that ever appeared in the platform of a Democratic convention, is the following: "We recognize the necessity of protecting and preserving the purity of the ballot box, as the safe guard of free institutions, and condemn any attempt to interfere with the free and free exercise of the elective franchise." This plank was adopted by the Democratic State convention of Alabama, and will produce a broad grin throughout the country.

Judge Field, of the Supreme Court of the United States, thinks Bayard, Hancock, or Morrison, will be the Democratic candidate for President in 1884. He then said: "One thing is certain; we cannot whip in the next fight on sentiment. The 'sinews of war' must be forthcoming. If they are absent from our camp, I would not advise anybody to bet against the Republican nominee. The Democrats can win against everything but their own folly."

The civilization of Kings county is disgraced by the occurrence of two fights which took place there this week. One was brought about by two Brooklyn aldermen, who persuaded the principals to break the peace and indulge in a regular fist and bloody fight. The other was a still more disgusting encounter being more brutal and bloody. After twenty-four rounds one of the men was beaten almost to a jelly, and was hardly able when the fight was over to raise his hand to shake the bloody hand of the ruffian who pounded him. The authorities took no steps to punish the criminals nor prevent the crime. Such degrading exhibitions should be stopped and thereby show some decent respect for law and order.

The bids were opened on the 15th for building the capitol extension at Madison but on account of the bids exceeding the appropriation made by the Legislature—$200,000—all of them were rejected: David Stephens, Madison, $205,000; Torenson, Frederickson & Fish, $250,000; Thomas R. Bentley, of Milwaukee, and O. F. Nowlan, Janesville, $214,900. It was decided by the Attorney General that new bids would not have to be advertised for, and after some cutting down in the plans and specifications, bids were made as follows: D. Stephens, $188,730; Thomas R. Bentley and Oscar F. Nowlan, $188,495; Frederickson & Fish, $216,030. Bentley & Nowlan being the lowest bidders were awarded the contract for the capitol extension.

A SHORT HONEYMOON.

Dubuque, June 15.—Last Sunday two young people at Platteville, Wis., Mr. Louis Sissler and Miss Bigford, were united in marriage, with all the usual joyful ceremonies of such occasions. After the marriage they went to reside at their home, a few miles from Platteville, where all went seemingly happy until yesterday morning, when the bride procured a revolver and shot herself dead. Friends are entirely at a loss to account for the occurrence, and attribute it to temporary insanity.

Frank Bardal, North Bennett Street, Buffalo, says: "I have tried your SPONGE BLOSSOM as a family medicine and have never come across anything to do so much good in so short a time in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia and derangement of the stomach; I strongly recommend it." Price 50 cents, trial bottles 10 cents.

TARIFF COMMISSION.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—There was another long special session of the Cabinet this afternoon on the Tariff Commission appointments. The President is greatly embarrassed by the declaration of gentlemen who have been offered places on the commission, and it is now reported that others besides Wheeler, Low, and Phelps have signified their unwillingness to serve. Of course the President feels a delicacy about offering the chairmanship to a man who is worthy of the honor, because it must appear that he is only the third choice of the President and his Cabinet. At this present rate the summer will be half gone before the commission is organized, and the result will be that no report will be ready when Congress assembles next December. The real friends of the Commission men who believed it would accomplish a long step, and they attribute their disappointment mainly to the vacillation and inefficiency of the President, who has, from the beginning, persisted in making false moves.

INDIANAPOLIS DISASTER.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 15.—The results of the flood of yesterday are fully as disastrous as at first reported, and the damage to property in the city will not fall short of $250,000. A number of prominent property owners have given notice of their intention to sue the city for such damages, alleging that Pogue's Run had been made use of as a central sewer, and therefore the free flow of water was impeded. The heaviest individual loss is that of Johnston, Erwin & Co., wholesale dry goods, whose stock is damaged to the amount of $30,000.

This morning two or more bodies were found, being those of Patrick Gaven, an elderly resident of this city, who leaves a wife and family, and James McManagan, an unmarried railroad. This makes seven bodies recovered, and three others, Patrick O'Brien, Charles Hermon, and Thomas Daley, have not yet been found, but it is certain that the relatives of the victims will sue the city for damages.

A VERY BAD AFFAIR.

BEDEORD, Ind., June 15.—The No. 1 regular north-bound passenger train on the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago Railroad met with a serious accident about four miles south of this place, about 12 o'clock to-day. They were late and running fast to make up time. Nearing the White River bridge the rear coach jumped the track and rolled down a steep embankment, pulling the other coach, engine and tender, mail and baggage with it. The engine also flew the track, but lodged about half-way down the embankment. Word was sent here at once, and a special train bearing physicians and nurses was immediately made up and sent to the wreck, all the passengers were removed from the broken cars, and the wounded were being cared for. There were thirty-five or more passengers on the train, all more or less injured.

THE FOREST FIRES.

LaCrosse, Wis., June 15.—The Republican Leader is to-day in receipt of authentic advices from the scene of the Clark county fire, stating that the fire started at the railroad track and ran north and burned round, but left Polley's camps, although destroying some timber. It also burned over Kenwick, Shaw & Crossett's timber, burning their camp and running up very near Hewittville. Hewitt, with a large force, saved the village. The fire thence ran up the stream a short distance, but the rain of Wednesday stopped its progress. It burned no timber on Wedge Creek above the mill at Hewittville. The reports have been much exaggerated.

OBITUARY.

COLUMBUS, June 15.—Ex-Governor William Dennison, known as the "War Governor of Ohio," died at 9 o'clock this morning, aged 67. He was governor of the State from 1869 to 1882, postmaster general under Presidents Lincoln and Johnson, commissioner of the District of Columbia under President Grant, and prominent in other public positions. He was president of the National convention which nominated Lincoln and Johnson, and was a candidate for the nomination for Vice President against Henry Wilson in 1872, and for Senator when Garfield was chosen in 1880. The State officials will arrange for the obsequies this afternoon.

"Affidavits Are Not Lobsters."

Gen. James Grant Wilson furnishes the Cape Ann Advertiser with the following pleasant gossip about old Admiral Coffin—one of the Coffins, by the way—and the great variety about Cape Cod of lobsters weighing exactly ninety pounds.

Sir Isaac Coffin, a British Admiral and a member of the family which held a famous reunion at Nantucket, August 16, was born at Boston, and when a child lived for some years on Cape Cod. Sir Isaac came to this country soon after the war of 1812, and during the voyage he stated to the officers of his flag-ship that when they reached Cape Cod he would show them lobsters that weighed ninety pounds! The rules of a quarter deck do not permit you to flatly contradict an Admiral, but still some doubt and distrust was visible on the countenances of the Captain and Lieutenants who stood around. "Well," said Sir Isaac, "if you doubt it, I will make you a wager that when we reach Cape Cod I will produce a lobster that weighs ninety pounds." The wager was made under the gracious permission of the Admiral, and when they arrived there Sir Isaac scoured the Cape, but he could not find any lobster that weighed ninety pounds. He said: "Well, they don't happen to be here just now, but I will obtain the affidavits of the old fishermen to prove that there are such lobsters." And he produced a pile of affidavits, showing that when there were fishermen in early times lobsters that weighed ninety pounds were as common as huckleberries on the Cape. Then it was left to an umpire to decide, which had lost and which had won, and by him so concise a judgment was given that if now living it would cuttle him to the vacant judgment in the Massachusetts Supreme Court. All his decisions were equally good. His decisions was that "affidavits are not lobsters." The distinguished member of the Coffin family, writing to his friend Commodore Isaac Hull, in 1816, says: "Many thanks for your kind exertions; send the ninety pound lobster when you can. My reputation will be saved, although my money is gone," and in another letter now lying before me the Admiral remarks: "The lobster you committed to Capt. Tracy arrived in good condition, and is considered a marvelous one here. Still my friend Sir Joseph Banks looks for one of ninety pounds." Whether Hull succeeded in saving Sir Isaac's reputation by sending him a ninety-pound lobster I very much regret I am unable to state, but a venerable Gloucester fisherman whom the writer consulted on the subject said: "There ain't been no such lobsters seen on Cape Ann during the last sixty years, an' I don't believe any such were ever caught on Cape Cod."

The Origin of "Ta-ta." For several years American paragraphs have been using the old Southern expression, "ta-ta," as a term of humorous farewell, thus giving it a meaning entirely different from that it started out in life with; and how it ever came to be applied in that way is a little surprising to any one to the Southern "manner born," and especially to any one familiar with the idioms of the South of antebellum days. No one who was ever netted, loved and spoiled by a kind old black "mammy" can ever forget that "ta-ta," in baby dialect, is "thank you," or, to give an exact definition from our unwritten vocabulary, "thanky." They can never forget mammy's coaxingly reproving tones, nor her "churchy," when, in correcting some childish forgetfulness, the omission of thanks for some slight favor, the gift of an apple or perhaps a stalk of sugar cane, she would say, "Honey, where's yo' manners? Why'n't yo' say 'ta-ta'?" For a more valuable present her words would have been: "Tell the lady you're much obliged," or "obliged," if she happened to be a little careful in her pronunciation, as many house servants were; but for all trifling gifts "ta-ta" was the popular term for the very little folks. Of course as the children grew larger this pet way of expressing thanks was laid aside with their baby clothes; and the "churchy" that mammy had taught them—a funny substitute for a bow, consisting only in a sudden bending of the knees, which caused a comical dip down and up—was put away with the jingling rhymes of early childhood.

"Ta-ta" belongs exclusively to the little ones; it is as peculiarly their own as are "catty cats" and "this little pig went to market" and all those other wonderful things belonging to child life. To the great world "ta-ta" is nothing but a ludicrous expression; but to many of us there is something half touching, half comical, in the quaint old words that bring back so vividly the days when we played in the fields, rode stick horses, believed in giants, knew that the fairies were hiding in the ferns and that pots of gold were waiting us at the end of the rainbow.—Pleasant Riderhood.

Tropical Fruits.

Mangoes from Jamaica are among the most delicious of these rare fruits. They are pear-shaped, with a thick, golden, red-checked rind and an orange-colored pulp. A large pit like a peach-stone takes up half the fruit, and contains a bitter kernel. The specimens of this fruit are said, by those who have eaten it in South America and Jamaica, to be excellent. It is necessary to pick the mango when it is ripe, as those that ripen after they are packed, are devoted to flavor and worthlessness. It is consequently a perishable cargo, and full twenty per cent. of those brought to this country spoil before they reach the country. The sweet mango is the species usually seen here. There is a slightly acid kind sometimes sold, which is very pleasant to the taste. Fresh mangoes are worth from fifty cents to one dollar a dozen.

The sweet mangoes put up at Bombay are a famous East India chutney, and are a popular accompaniment of curries in England. Though seldom used in this country, they may be bought for $1.50 a bottle. They should not be confounded with pickled musk melons, which are called mangoes by New England housekeepers.

The red and yellow banana are not different species. All bananas are naturally yellow and are made red by grafting. The effect of the graft runs out in seven years, when we have sometimes bananas that are red, spotted or streaked with yellow. There are over forty or fifty varieties of this fruit. The little guineos, or fig banana, is not unknown to our fruit stores. It is not over a finger long, and it is one of the finest species. The plantain and banana are of the same family. The oriental Christians searching for the Garden of Eden believed that the banana was the forbidden fruit, and named it the "tree of Paradise," though the "forbidden fruit" sold in Paris fruit stalls and in our own market is a species of orange, the grape shaddock. It is of no special value, is acid, and is kept more for display than for anything else. The legend says, it was good till Eve tasted it, but it has been bad since. The deep depression near the stem of the fruit like the mark of teeth are supposed to be the origin of its claim.

The mandarin oranges are a small species of fruit with a dark-colored perfume and hardly thicker than brown paper. The tangerine is a variety of mandarin. It is the thinnest-skinned species of orange known. Mandarin and tangerine oranges, which are in market during the winter months, are sold from seventy-five cents to one dollar a dozen. The seedless St. Michael oranges are brought from the Azores, and though common in England, are seldom seen in this country. They are a small, light-colored fruit, with scarcely any seeds, and are excellent in flavor. In this city they bring from sixty to seventy-five cents a dozen.

Fresh coconuts, or the immature coconuts, picked when they are half ripe, are the favorite food and beverage of the tropics. The stem and green cup at the base dropping off is the external indication that they have soured.—Exchange.

Dr. Drug and Mrs. Pansy.
Mrs. P.—Oh, these children, how trouble some they are.

Dr. D.—Yes, madam, as the poet says, they are very troublesome comforts. But I think your little girl is not seriously ill.

Mrs. P.—What do you find in the matter with her?

Dr. D.—Only a slight fever—the effects of teething. It is that which makes her fret.

Mrs. P.—What can you prescribe for her?

Dr. D.—A cup of sage tea.

Mrs. P.—We have some, sleeping on the stove. Please hold the cup, Doctor, while I give her the tea with a spoon.

Dr. D.—Does she swallow it well?

Mrs. P.—Not so well as I could wish. It makes her sick at her stomach. What shall I do?

Dr. D.—Stop giving it to her. I think we must try the water cure.

Mrs. P.—I never heard of it. What is it?

Dr. D.—We must wrap her in wet sheets and let her steep—I mean let her sweat—by putting the blankets over her.

Mrs. P.—That is easily done. What is your fee?

Dr. D.—Oh, madam, I like to cure my patient before I begin to talk of fees.

Mrs. P.—Still I would like to know the cost of a visit. I try to keep out of debt.

Dr. D.—Three dollars is my usual fee, where I have to call on a patient.

Mrs. P.—That is reasonable. I will give you a check on my brother's bank. His bank hours are from 12 to 2.

Dr. D.—As I shall have to call again, we will wait till I have a larger bill.

Mrs. P.—Oh, very well. Make your bill as large as you please, Doctor; it shall be paid. [The doctor goes out.]

—Mr. Patrick Collins, an old resident of the Fourth ward, met with a serious accident last Wednesday. The limb upon which he was seated, broke precipitating Mr. Collins to the ground, at a distance of fifteen feet. He was picked up in an insensible condition and taken into the house, where an examination disclosed the fact that he had escaped serious injury. No bones were broken.

A Good Citizen Gone.

Mr. Thomas Nightingale, an old resident of Janesville and the section boss on the Northwestern road, died at his residence, at 1 o'clock a. m. to-day, of pyæmia, the result of a several months' gangrenous affection. His veins in the lower portion of his body became affected some time ago, but after a short confinement to the house, he was enabled to return to work. His many friends thought him in the best of health, and will be surprised to learn of his sudden demise. The funeral will take place next Sunday, from St. Patrick's church.

Vieberg's Wound.

Dr. Palmer paid a visit to-day to Ole Vieberg, the Norwegian who was accidentally shot last Sunday near his house in Newark township. The doctor made an examination of the wound, and discovered that the skull had been driven in and slightly fractured. The precise location of the ball could not be determined, but the indications showed it to have most probably lodged just under and in close proximity to the brain. The doctor does not think the brain was cut a particle, but refused to attempt to extract the bullet, as the operation would be too dangerous to risk. Vieberg may possibly recover, but there is little hope.

The Weather.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS.

The heat to-day was most agreeably dissipated by the rain. The thermometer registered 70 degrees at 7 o'clock this morning, an indication of a hot day, but at 1 o'clock p. m., it had risen only four degrees, the mercury standing at 74. At the same hour last year it showed 72 degrees at 7 o'clock in the morning, and 89 at 1 o'clock.

The indications to-day were as follows:

Lake Region—Fair; weather during the day, followed by light rains in the upper lake regions, winds mostly south to west, slight changes in temperature except near Lake Superior, slight fall in temperature, and in eastern portion rising barometer.

Mysterious Explosion.

Paddy McGinley, the night watchman was visited with a sensational surprise early this morning, and being of a somewhat nervous temperament, the affair was not as agreeable as it might have been. There is considerable mystery surrounding the circumstance, which the most diligent investigation has failed to solve. At about 3 o'clock this morning Mr. McGinley was resting his wearied frame on a dry goods box, and had scarcely succeeded in getting into a comfortable position, when crash—bang—boom! went some horrible explosive material in the near vicinity. McGinley bounced from his seat, and with disturbed eyes peered anxiously about, expecting each moment to see a host of hobgoblins on the war path, but true to his duties of watchman, he ran down the street, inspecting every possible place of concealment for the authors of the inexplicable noise. It seemed as if burglarious marauders had broken through the side of a house, and so loud was the sound, Mr. and Mrs. Leech, the night clerk of the Myers' house, and a number of other residents of the neighborhood were aroused. All inquired of the watchman the cause of the unusual hubbub, but he was as ignorant as they. A careful search was made of all the premises in the vicinity and nothing was discovered out of the way. The noise seemed to proceed from Hanchett's store, but investigation showed that to be in good order. Those who heard the noise, say it sounded like the breaking of a window or the violent slamming of a door, or an explosion. To-day the mystery is still unsolved, and a committee will search about the neighborhood for any stray dynamite bomb.

H. D. Chapman's Funeral.

The remains of the late H. D. Chapman, who was drowned in a railroad accident on the Wabash road, last Wednesday, reached here by the Northwestern road this afternoon. A number of sympathetic friends were at the depot to receive the body and extend their condolence to the bereaved relatives, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Church. The body was encoined in a handsome coffin and placed in a hearse. The funeral took place this afternoon, the body being interred in Oak Hill cemetery.

The accident which caused the death of Mr. Chapman was due to the heavy rains in southern Illinois, which caused a number of washouts. The bridge over the Sangamon river on the Wabash road near Gibson Ills., was washed away. Mr. Chapman unfortunately was caught in the accident and drowned.

Yesterday at Whitewater.

The excursion of the Catholic Total Abstinence and Benevolent Society to Whitewater, yesterday, was attended with some agreeable and interesting episodes. The party, attired in their regalia and preceded by the Bower City Band, marched through the city on their return last evening, with flags and banners flying, making a most creditable display. The day was pleasantly passed in Whitewater in a parade with the other societies of the State there in convention assembled, a mammoth picnic and a speech-making. Among the addresses made, was one by Father McGinnity, of St. Patrick's church, who eloquently encouraged the societies in the good work they were doing. There were over three hundred persons in the parade, including the Custer Guards, of Whitewater. The Janesville society were highly complimented upon their splendid appearance.

An Indignant Pap.

Considerable amusement was afforded a number of spectators a day or two since, by watching the antics of a much surprised dog. Mr. J. S. Bliss had placed several plaster of paris casts on his stoop, and a diminutive specimen of canine species, noticing the strange appearance of the objects, immediately concluded they were intruders not entitled to recognition by any well-bred and well-fed pup. He growled his protest at a miniature representation of the Ignomodon, and snarled at the Glyptodon-megalosaurus. A madder dog was never seen; but finding himself powerless, he looked pleadingly up at the few gentlemen present, with an expression which seemed to say "hitch a tin pan to their tails," or "apply a little turpentine." He had evidently been there.

Mr. Robert D. Stewart has been called to Chicago, and will act as conductor on a Chicago passenger train.

Other merited promotions are those of Mr. Albert H. Stickney, and Mr. George Anderson for long time freight conductors who have been called to Chicago, and on Monday will run the new Dakota passenger on the Northwestern, between Chicago and Harvard. These four old-time citizens of Janesville, have been rewarded for their long and faithful services on the Northwestern railway, and their friends here will be glad to hear of their success.
